📍 CHAMPAGNE POOLS

From vast, coastal beauty, to tranquil rainforests and dense bushland, the diversity of K'gari truly needs to be seen to be believed.

From dawn until dusk, an array of natural wonders each take their moment to shine, offering a preview into the many elements that make K'gari one of Queensland's most sought-after nature escapes.

As the sun rises, beautiful sounds of birdlife erupt, as the island's many species fossick amongst the bushland and dart from one tree to the next. A salty ocean breeze fills the air, as sand shifts across the desert-like dunes along the expansive east coast. In the heart of the island, Lake McKenzie (Boorangoora) illuminates with a striking burst of turquoise, contrasted against its pristine white silica shore.

As the day draws to a close, Mother Nature puts on one last spectacle, bathing the west coast in a mango-coloured glow, as golden light glistens on the water's edge before dipping below the horizon across the Great Sandy Strait. The experience? An overcoming sense of wonderment, with travellers taking away a deeper connection to nature than when they arrived.

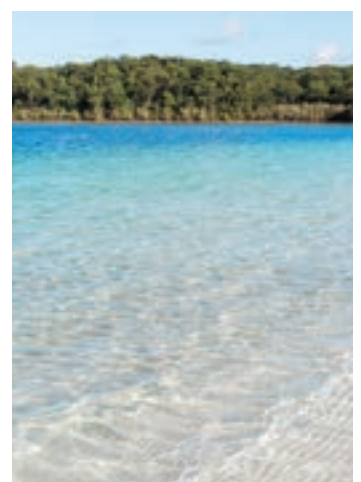

IMMERSED IN NATURE

A little-known fact about this larger-than-life destination, is that there are no roads – only sand tracks. As travellers navigate the rugged, inland terrain, the landscape suddenly changes, from native gums and grasses, to lush rainforest.

Unique to K'gari, Pile Valley and the Central Station rainforest is the only place in the world where rainforests grow from the sand, at elevations of more than two-hundred metres.

Roam amongst an abundance of towering satinays and marvel at the sheer magnitude of these ancient trees – some over one thousand years old. Catch glimmers of dappled sunlight as it streams through the rich and flourishing canopy of palms and admire the delicate details of the spectacular King ferns...there's beauty at every track and turn.

UNESCO wonders

AT YOUR DOORSTEP

A NATURAL PHENOMENA

K'gari is unlike anywhere else in the world... golden sand blows collide with crystalline lakes, and a myriad of wildlife inhabit the rugged landscapes.

Inscribed on the UNESCO World Heritage list in 1992, the island was formally recognised for meeting three key criteria: outstanding universal value, ongoing biological and ecological processes, and as an example of superlative natural phenomena, becoming Queensland's fourth listed World Heritage environmental area at the time.

This pristine environment is characterised by ancient dune systems, rainforests growing from sand. not to mention over one hundred freshwater lakes - forty of which are perched dune lakes (a unique formation of organic matter and fed entirely by rainwater), comprising half the world's population of its kind.

The ever-changing landscapes of K'gari are home to a varied range of flora and fauna, creating a wildlife-spotting utopia by land, air and sea. Visitors seek to witness an array of wild inhabitants, most notably, Wongari - Australia's most pure breed of dingo; often spotted scampering along the eastern beach, before taking cover in the scrub, or one of the 384 identified species of coastal and migratory birds soaring in the skies.

To this day, K'gari is regarded as a natural wonder, brimming with rich history and cultural significance - a place that travellers hope to experience at least once in a lifetime.

K'GARI DISCOVERY CENTRE

In this new interpretative space, travellers of all ages can learn and form a greater understanding of the unique wildlife and complex ecosystems that led to the island's World Heritage listing.

Featuring informative panels and striking photographs captured by K'gari's resident photographer Peter Meyer, this educational, environmental hub is the perfect addition to every island itinerary.

FREE for all visitors and open daily, the Discovery Centre is located within the grounds of Kingfisher Bay Resort.

THE GREAT SANDY BIOSPHERE

Awarded Biosphere Reserve status in 2009, this places the Great Sandy Region in the same class as the Galapagos Islands, Central Amazon, the Everglades and Uluru.

The area consists of a series of small islands, and a mosaic of habitats including seagrass meadows, sandflats, mangroves, coral reefs and rocky shores, creating the perfect environment and feeding grounds for numerous species of marine life including dolphins, dugongs and six species of sea turtles.

A WILDLIFE wonderland

*Why Hervey Bay is the whale watching capital

AN ENCOUNTER UNLIKE ANY OTHER

K'gari resides within the Fraser Coast region, which for years has been regarded as one of Australia's most coveted whale watching locations. Recognised in 2019 for its responsible and sustainable practices, Hervey Bay was crowned the world's first Whale Heritage Site!

Annually between the months of July to October, Platypus Bay, off the western coast of K'gari, is the playground for thousands of humpback whales, on their annual migration from the Antarctic.

These calm, sheltered waters offer a safe haven for the whales to rest, play and nurture their young - using this sanctuary to teach their calves important life skills, before they begin their journey south once more.

LARGER THAN LIFE EXPERIENCES

Prepare for a heart-stopping phenomenon, and a wildlife display that will rival anything you've witnessed before.

As the only known landmass that breaks a whale's migratory journey, thousands of these majestic creatures travel up K'gari's east coast, before venturing down into the bay.

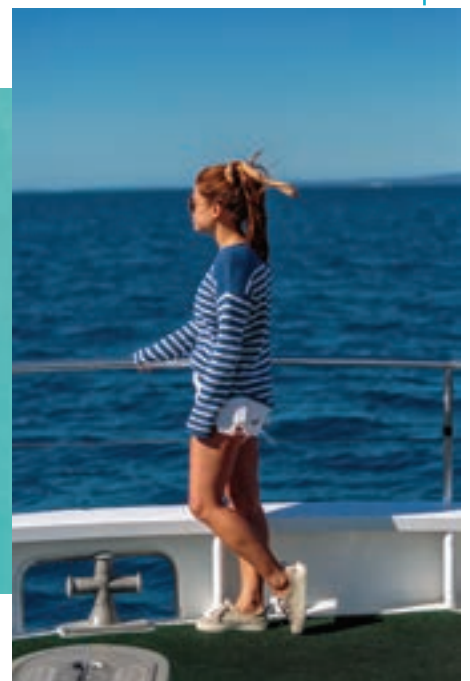

As the whale watching boat heads out onto the water, guests are advised to be on the lookout for sprays from blowholes, tail slaps or breaches off into the distance. Before long, keen eyes will no doubt spot a pec fin waving, or a majestic deep dive, signifying that a pod is nearby.

Naturally inquisitive creatures, the whales also love to people-watch, just as much as travellers love to marvel at these gentle giants. Claps, whistles and waving often piques the humpback's curiosity, and may see them approach the boats, also known as 'mugging'. Better yet, bear witness to a breathtaking, 40-tonne aerial demonstration as these oceanic giants surge from beneath the waters' surface, making an almighty splash - well known as a breach.

SIGHTINGS GUARANTEED!

The whale season runs annually from July until mid-October, with cruises departing Kingfisher Bay Resort daily. Suitable for all ages, bookings are essential!

10 AWE-INSPIRING LOCATIONS IN ONE.....

*A BUCKET LIST GUIDE TO THE WORLD'S LARGEST SAND ISLAND
- QUEENSLAND'S ULTIMATE ADVENTURE DESTINATION.*

1 LAKE MCKENZIE (BOORANGOORA)

Renowned for its brilliant blue hues and pristine white sands, this freshwater lake is the definition of paradise! Located in the heart of K'gari, Lake McKenzie, or 'Boorangoora' as it's named by the Butchulla people, is the most visited natural site on the island.

This perched dune lake, one of forty of its kind on the Island, is fed entirely by rainwater, sitting high on the sand dunes, approximately one hundred metres above sea level.

Paperbark trees are dotted along the shore, and the ever-so-fine silica sand acts as a filter, giving the water its clarity and defined turquoise gradient. With temperate depths, this pure oasis is an idyllic year-round swimming spot, and a must on every island itinerary!

2 PILE VALLEY RAINFOREST

This historic centre of K'gari is home to soaring satinay trees, kauri pines and a range of remarkable rainforest plants. The satinays were once logged for their hardness, used to rebuild the London Docks after WWII. Today, this enchanting environment is now protected – one of the first rainforest areas in Queensland to be recognised under the Queen's Commonwealth Canopy initiative, to conserve the Forests of K'gari.

3 THE PINNACLES

Located along the eastern beach, The Pinnacles Coloured Sands comprise over seventy-two shades of red, yellow, and orange – stained due to the iron-rich minerals within the sand and clay. These rugged formations loom high above the coastline, with the layers said to have formed over many years, due to wind and rain exposing the cliff's core.

TRAVEL TIP – A spectacular time to visit is in the early morning, as the sun rises, hitting the cliff's surface.

4 MAHENO SHIPWRECK

Built in Scotland in 1905, the SS Maheno was once a well-known Trans-Tasman liner, later commissioned as a hospital ship during the First World War. The Maheno was bound for Japanese scrap metal when it was run aground by a cyclone in July 1935. This historic hull is now an iconic landmark along 75 Mile Beach, with its rustic ruins a must-see for many.

5 WANGGOOLBA CREEK

Within the heart of K'gari is Central Station and weaving between the towering palm trees and giant King ferns, are the tranquil and ever-so-clear depths of Wanggoolba Creek (Which flows all the way across to the western coastline). The glistening freshwater is best viewed from the rainforest boardwalk or follow the nature path as it weaves along the edge of the waterway, as you spot eels, fish and revel in the orchestra of birdcalls.

6 CHAMPAGNE POOLS

Navigate along the east coast, just north of Indian Head and soon you'll find the only saltwater swimming location on 75 Mile Beach. Immerse yourself in these aptly-named rock pools, as the ocean's waves crash, bubble and fizz over the volcanic rock formations, just like Champagne!

7 ELI CREEK

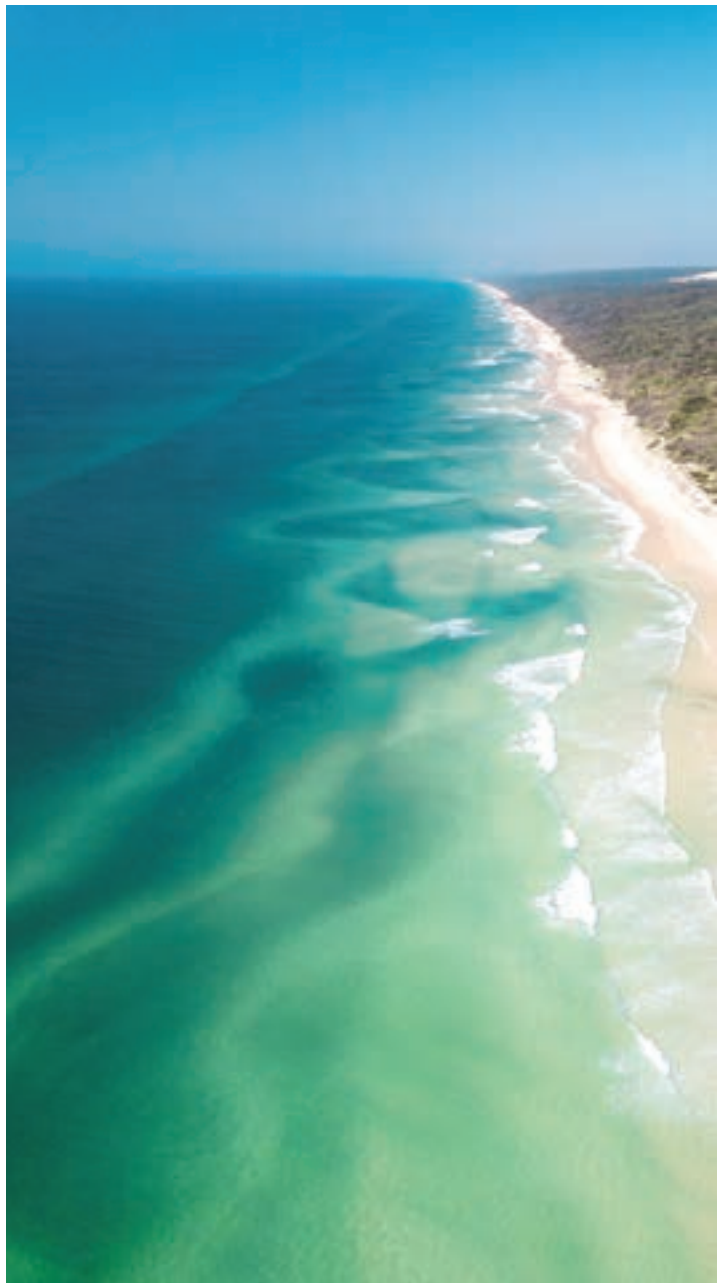

One of the island's most popular watering holes, is Eli Creek – the largest creek on the eastern beach. With over four million litres of clear, fresh water flowing into the ocean every hour, the gentle current is perfect for a float, weaving your way along the tree-lined banks, as light glistens through the pandanus leaves. Park up on the beach for a picnic and stroll along the winding boardwalk, or simply spend the afternoon in the sunshine, as the kids splash in the clear, shallow depths.

8 LAKE WABBY

Nestled within the native bushland and coastal sand dunes of the eastern beach lies a hidden gem... the ever-evolving, emerald-green oasis of Lake Wabby.

Known as both a window lake and a barrage lake, this unique swimming spot is located at the base of the golden Hammerstone Sandblow, and will one-day be engulfed by the island's slowly shifting sands. But for now, travellers (and a few species of fish) can revel in this picturesque freshwater beauty.

TRAVEL TIP: Moderate fitness is required for this 4km return walk. The trail head is located on the eastern beach, just north of K'gari Beach Resort.

10 LAKE BIRRABEEN

At a quick glance, this could easily be mistaken for the famous Lake McKenzie. This lesser-known, but equally spectacular lake is often much quieter than her look-alike sister, offering travellers an exclusive swimming experience.

Also a perched dune lake, all organic matter is filtered out through the sand, allowing it to maintain its astonishing crystal clear appearance – swim without the crowds and soak up some island sunshine.

9 75 MILE BEACH

As the name implies, this is one vast beach, which also runs the length of K'gari. An official Australian gazetted highway, this stretch of coastline also acts as a runway – one of just two places in the world where planes can take off and land on the sand. Year-round, the shore is dotted with fishermen casting for tailor, whiting and more, as 4WD's cruise up and down in between the tides to some of the destination's most desired locations.

Take me there

Stir up your sense of adventure, and get ready to explore...

Nothing can quite compare to the immensity of the world's largest sand island. With locations like these all on one expansive and beautiful destination, it requires careful planning to tick off your must-see spots.

TIPS

- Map out your key sights, and group locations together, such as Eli Creek and the Maheno Shipwreck
- Be sure to check the tide times in advance, to maximise your drive time along the eastern beach

TAKE A WALK ON THE WILD SIDE

There's numerous self-guided walking trails on K'gari, with many commencing from Kingfisher Bay Resort – most notably, the Lake McKenzie Circuit. Hit the tracks on foot and take the opportunity to truly admire your surroundings.

Approximately 11km (3hrs) each way, this may be the longer route, however it's certainly a rewarding effort when you reach your destination and catch a glimpse of those crystal-clear depths – don't forget to pack your swimmers!

A PIONEER IN SUSTAINABLE TRAVEL FOR OVER 30 YEARS

From the initial concept, through to construction, Kingfisher Bay Resort was built to strict environmental guidelines. Due to the unique nature of the destination, and with the rare opportunity to develop on freehold land, immense planning, Topographical, Vegetation and Hydrological surveys were undertaken.

Kingfisher Bay Resort was the first resort in Australia to employ a Director of Environmental Management to oversee implementation of the resort's environmental program, with 600 local builders and artisans also employed from the southeast Queensland region.

With a distinctive Queensland-style architecture, two-storey timber buildings are immersed in the trees, yet raised above ground, to not impact the wildlife and undergrowth. An onsite nursery, water filtration plant and waste management system were also consciously incorporated, setting benchmarks for ecotourism ventures worldwide, and later seeing Kingfisher Bay Resort inducted into the Queensland Tourism Awards Hall of Fame.

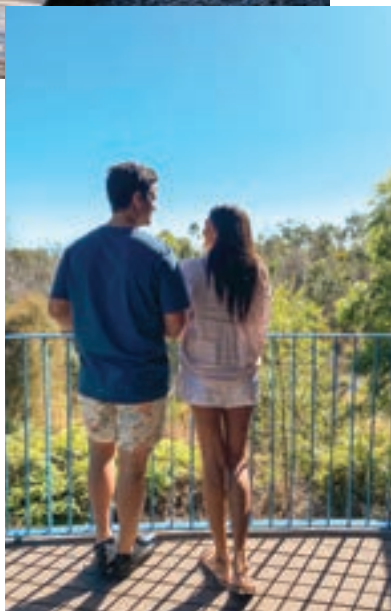

With Advanced Certification status from Ecotourism Australia, the resort is committed to providing low-impact travel experiences on K'gari.

FISHING

INDIAN HEAD

Discover this rocky headland, and the most easterly point of the island, just south of the Champagne Pools. Some of the destination's most renowned gutters are found here, stretching right down to the Maheno. Plan your trip between late July and November for the island's famed Tailor season, with huge schools pooling in these gutters.

MAHENO SHIPWRECK

This rustic ruin is more than just a spectacular photo backdrop – the Maheno is a bream hotspot! When faced with a long channel, look for steep shelving beach, the perfect indication of a deep gutter. Whiting is also highly sought after by keen K'gari anglers. Targeting shallow waters, they're also the perfect option for kids to have a crack at their first catch! Best of all, this popular fish is found all year round along the eastern beach. For the prime time to cast a line, aim for typically an hour or so after low tide.

4WD TIPS + TICKS

Tyre pressure – Set it low, around 18 PSI when driving in the sand, as it increases the surface area for your tyre to grip, especially in softer sand conditions.

Momentum – Keeping a steady pace is key, particularly when driving uphill on the tracks, to ensure that your tyres don't sink into the sand.

Technique – Drive to the conditions, and slowly work up your speed. The inland tracks have a limit of 30km/h – keep an eye out for pits and fallen tree branches. 75 Mile Beach has an 80km/h speed limit in some areas, however it's important to monitor the beach ahead of you and be cautious of washouts or run-off from nearby creeks.

Planning – Travel along 75 Mile Beach travel during low tide times, where more of the beach is exposed and easier to navigate, and avoid driving two hours either side of high tide.

Recovery – Always pack a set of MAXTRAX + a snatch strap as your 4WD essentials.

Courtesy – The inland tracks have a series of pull-off bays, allowing other vehicles to pass through. Be sure to give way to convoys and larger vehicles / coaches.

LESSER KNOWN LOCATIONS

OCEAN LAKE

One of K'gari's best kept secrets, with deep navy blue hues, surrounded by native bushland and with paperbark trees lining the edges of this calm, yet expansive lake. A day-use area with picnic tables is located on the Eastern Beach scenic drive, about 7.3km north of Waddy Point.

KNIFE BLADE SANDBLOW

Knife Blade is currently the largest sandblow on the island, stretching more than 3.5kms. One not to miss, you'll find a small carpark and a signposted lookout along Woralie Road.

BASIN LAKE

Perched lakes form when organic matter gradually hardens over time, creating a depression for water to pool, stopping it from leaching out, and is only fed by rainwater. The result? A very pure lake, perfect for swimming!

LAKE ALLOM

If you've set your sights on spotting some wildlife, then be sure to travel on foot from the Lake Allom day-use area to a quaint viewing platform. This beautiful, tannin-infused lake is home to a unique species called Krefft's river turtles, who frequently pop up to say hello!
